Holly Hunt Renews Showroom Leases in Chicago, New York

Recommitting to showrooms at the Design Center at the Mart in Chicago and the A&D Building in New York, the renewal comes at a time when many in the industry are struggling with how to approach in-person interactions. Of the renewals, Marc Szafran, president of Holly Hunt, said in a statement: “This means supporting the trade however and whenever they want to engage with us: to check inventory, to shop, to specify, to order samples, to manage quotes and orders, or even more. Designers have loved and trusted our showrooms for almost 40 years because of the creative inspiration they afford, as well as the opportunity to see, touch and feel our beautiful products.” Hunt’s first showroom opened in Chicago in 1983, and her New York space is this year marking 20 years in business.
